PHI

PHI is often collected for data purposes as part of a research study, but did you know that TTUHSC EP has a drive specifically created to store PHI in a secure manner. If any of the 18 common identifiers are being collected, reaching out to Research IT may be a useful way for your research team to stay compliant while maintaining information in a safe and centralized location. In addition, REDCap users can also mark data points as identifiers on REDCap. This saves time and energy as it is fast and easy to redact this information at the end of a study.
